Symposium Unplugged Highlights Youth Behavioral Health

On Dec. 11, we held a Symposium Unplugged event, Behavioral Health and Colorado Classrooms, in Greeley at the University of Northern Colorado. Attendees included school-based health professionals, counselors, public health officials and behavioral health advocates.

Bringing together the voices of experts, youth and educators, last week's discussion explored how Colorado schools can best support all students in building the resiliency they need to be mentally well. The event featured keynotes by Dr. Nancy Lever, co-director of the National Center for School Mental Health, and Dr. Michael A. Lindsey of New York University. It also offered a series of rotating Learning Labs to dig deeper into this important issue of schools and youth behavioral health at the local level.

Thank you to everyone who joined us for Behavioral Health and Colorado Classrooms in-person or online. You can watch the sessions and view additional event resources on the Symposium Unplugged webpage. We also encourage you to continue the conversation using the hashtag #18CHSUnplugged.
